Capitol March Shows Students Have Pep

The Friday night march on the Capitol, held as a prelude to the State-Carolina game, turned out to be almost an athletic event within itself.

The march, starting with a 7 p.m. pep rally in Riddick Stadium, attracted approximately one thousand State students who alternately ran and walked to the Capitol—mostly ran according to some observers.

On the way back from the Dome, the panting pack paused a moment to serenade around 150 St. Mary's girls with various cheers.

Traveling down Hillsboro Street, the students would run for a couple of blocks, walk a few steps with tongues lolling, cheer, and resume the marathon. Cries of "For Heaven's sake, stop running" came from many students as, afraid of being left behind, they started trotting again.

Finally reaching the Capitol, the mob scampered up on the lawn and clung to statues as they let loose with "Rip 'em up, tear 'em up, give 'em hell State."

Making an about-face, the marchers began their long journey back to the campus, pausing only to shake up a few cars containing Carolina students. After stopping for a short time at the entrance to St. Mary's, the mass finally made it back, to disperse into groups. Some of the tuckered students sacked out for the evening, while other headed out to Meredith for a few more cheers. Still others headed for cheer of another kind at various establishments located on Hillsboro.

The cheerleaders rode down.

Candidates Now Are Reminded

All freshmen candidates are required to meet in the Student Union theater tonight at 7 p.m. Any candidates who are not at this meeting will be disqualified according to Ron Stinner, chairman of the Elections Committee. Interpretation: this means that if you expect to be a freshman senator, you must be at this meeting.

How Do You Do, Nhu

State Dean Wins Sawing Contest

Most people would never guess that Dean of the School of Agriculture H. Brooks James is vicious, but he is—with a bow saw, that is.

He proved it last week in a televised log-sawing contest at the State Fair.

Opponents L. Y. Ballentine, North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, and R. J. Preston, dean of the School of Forestry, were thoroughly put to shame by Dean James' wicked blade. James ripped through his eight-inch log in about thirty seconds while Ballentine and Preston had only finished about half of their logs.

In recognition of his feat Dean James was presented with a suitable award. It was a six-by-four-inch pine log on a three-foot chain to wear around his neck. James said it looked like a cask St. Bernards wear, "but it wasn't hollow."

Thirty Students Picket Madame Nhu's Arrival

Thirty Chapel Hill students carrying signs showed last Thursday to greet Madame Nhu.

Approximately 30 members of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Student Peace Union appeared at the airport and the Student Union for Madame Nhu's engagement here. According to John Dunne, Chairman of the group, the students were protesting United States aid to Vietnam.

Dunne said that the marchers were not protesting her appearance, but "U. S. aid to a government which represents six-tenths of one per cent of the population of South Vietnam."

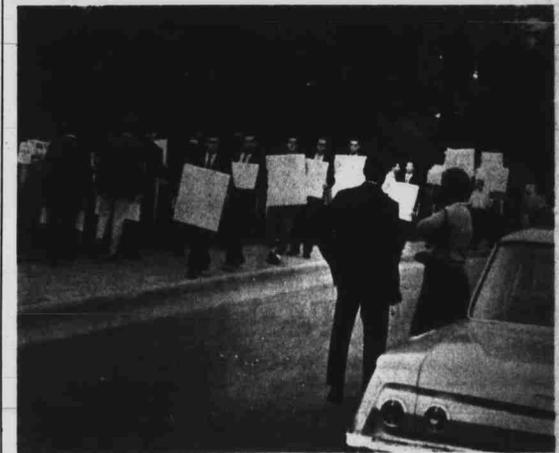

The picketers made their first appearance at the airport as Madame Nhu arrived. Carrying signs which said "Guns or Land," and "All Hands Off Vietnam" the students paraded silently. Prior to Mme. Nhu's arrival at the Raleigh Durham Airport, the picketers passed out leaflets attacking the Diem regime and American aid to that country.

Continuing, Dunne stated that the suppression of "the most basic human freedoms is totally inimical to the ideals of American democracy."

Dunne said, "We feel that the U. S. should withdraw all military and economic aid to the Diem regime. An attempt should be made at setting up free elections in both North and South Vietnam as provided for in the Geneva Accordance, which we agreed to support."

Thirty members of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Student Peace Union chapter picketed during Madame Nhu's appearance Thursday. SPU Chairman John Dunne, said the marchers were protesting American aid to the Diem government, not Mme. Nhu and her daughter.

Student Government Meets

Student Government saw last Thursday night the first returns of its new mandate system.

These came first in the form of a report by the Campus Welfare Committee, headed by Glenn Chappell (jr., Ag.), that student wages and employment conditions on campus were satisfactory. The report stated that many departments on campus were, in fact, creating jobs so students in need might have employment.

A resolution presented by Beckton James (sr., Eng.) asking that the SG President be mandated to appoint a non-voting representative to the Raleigh City Council was a second return. The resolution was the result of an earlier action mandating the Vice President to look into the possibility of having a voice on the City Council.

In other action of the evening a mandate was passed that the Campus Beautification Committee look in to the feasibility of converting the fountain located North of the Nuclear Reactor into an object serving some useful purpose. The measure was moved by Curtiss Moore (alternate, jr., LA).

Another resolution, introduced by Doug Lientz (jr., PSAM) asked that the Traffic Committee investigate traffic problems at various intersections on the campus. The resolution also called for a look at McKimmon Village parking facilities.

The motion carried.

Saturday's Victory

Miss Nancy Evans, a blond, blue-eyed Meredith senior, was crowned Miss Consolidated University at halftime Saturday. Nancy won the title from a bevy of nine lovelies representing the Raleigh, Chapel Hill, and Greensboro campuses. She was escorted by Tom Dellinger and sponsored by Sigma Chi.

Apollo Club

The personal representative of George Meany, AFL-CIO president, will speak to the Apollo Club this Wednesday night.

His name is Ted F. Silvey; his topic is "The Role of Organized Labor."

Silvey developed from an apprentice China decorator in a pottery plant, then moving into a bookkeeper-payroll officer. In 1956 he visited Germany as an investigator in accident insurance and workman's compensation, later extending the investigation into six other European countries.

His talk will be after a 5:45 p.m. supper in the SU ballroom.

New Job Finders Begin Work

Student Government has appropriated $440 for the establishment of a student summer employment service.

The action was taken at the regular Thursday night session and carried over only two dissenting votes. Chip Andrews was named to chair the new commission. SG officers John Bynum and Herb Goldston spoke for the proposal, as did senior senator John Carr.

Chairman Andrews told The Technician the money will be used to cover expenses of the service which will include the cost of printing and mailing a 20-page brochure covering the University in general, and the qualifications of its students as regarding summer employment in particular. The brochure will be mailed to about 600 companies in North Carolina and surrounding states.

Andrews stated that a scholastic-personal data form will be distributed to all students within the next three weeks. Students desiring the service will return the forms, and personal interviews with interested companies will be arranged on the basis of these form records and individual company needs.

The only cost to the student will be a $10 fee requested from those students who secure employment through the service. "The fee will be paid only after the student has received a letter of acceptance and will be used to replenish the fund for next year," Andrews said.

Trial And Error

Pride goeth before a fall . . .
There was no evidence available on campus last week that Student Government was involved in Campus Pride Week.

There were no posters, no signs on trash cans, not even any active participation in the week by its members.

It is very discouraging to observe SG members trampling the grass and strewing paper. It is even more disappointing when they do so in defiance of the week they are supporting.

This does not shift the blame from the student body who should have participated. It could be a beautiful campus, if only someone would try to make it so.

CPW was only one of a series of errors which were available from SG last week.

Student Government showed a lack of knowledge in its own constitution when it announced that election books would be kept in the Student Union and then had to shift them to Peele Hall. When the books bounced back to the Union, the situation was made even more ludicrous by the announcement that the Union main desk is now a part of Peele Hall.

Student Government appeared to have doubts about the ability of its own leaders to lead when administration officials were present to actively assist in quelling last Wednesday's unguided tour of Chapel Hill. This was a legal student meeting and should have been handled by students.

Student Government's mistakes pile up—and, this is a good thing, because it proves something indirectly.

You don't make mistakes when you don't do anything. —GB

A Retraction

Two and a half weeks ago this paper ran an editorial stating that this institution was not yet a true university. It also stated that the student body on his campus was a few years away from acting like one from a true liberal arts school.

We apologize to the students for saying this.

The students of this University have, during the past two weeks, behaved as much like the student body of a true university as they ever will.

The Friends of the College, the New Arts Program, and the Student Union Lectures Committee all have one or more packed house to their credit this year.

Student Government has already done a good bit of work, and if all the projects it has begun thus far are carried through, it cannot avoid topping its performance last year. And it has only started the year's work.

No students have brought disgrace upon this campus this year. When several students started planning a tour of the UNC campus last week, more responsible students talked them out of it before they got their group together.

Additional responsible students were on hand at the proposed planning meeting for the tour to talk to anyone who showed up in support of the idea.

Even more to the credit of the student body as a whole is the lack of attendance at this meeting.

Madame Nhu received one of the most polite welcomes of her tour of this country on this campus.

The only blot upon the visit was picketing by members of a less responsible student body.

All of these things do credit to the student body of a true university.

We congratulate the student body on this show of maturity.

Continue to live up to this beginning. —DL

The Life Of Nhu's Le Thuy

By Rick Stypmann

Madame Nhu made a big impression on campus last Thursday, but her daughter, Le Thuy left an even bigger one on some members of our campus.

Le Thuy has all the exotic beauty of her mother and combines it well with the exuberance of youth. She is just over 18 years old, about five feet and five inches tall.

Le Thuy was born in Vietnam while the country was under French control and has seen her country go through many years of war and the hardships of war. A graduate of high school at the age of 16, Le Thuy is now attending college with the aim of being a doctor in her country.

All during her childhood, Le Thuy was directly involved in the war over Communism in her country. Three times in her life the presidential palace has been besieged by the Viet Cong guerrillas in Saigon, the capital city of Vietnam. "I received my first baptism of fire at the age of ten," she said.

When asked whom she admired most in America, Le Thuy said, "I admire the saints and not mortals." In spite of the fact that Buddhism is the dominant religion in Vietnam, Le Thuy is an ardent Catholic who adheres closely to her faith.

Her hobby is shooting and she has developed into an excellent shot. She gained an interest in riflery through her work with the women's army in her country. The army is composed of all able women in the country. Its purpose is to act as a home defense army. Each woman in the country receives six months of active training during each year. Le Thuy has gained the position of "major of the second position" since she entered the army.

Upon the subject of her mother, Le Thuy said she is very patriotic and is doing what she thinks "is good for her country." According to Le Thuy, the people of South Vietnam admire her mother and have complete faith in what she is doing.

The people of her country have adopted many Western customs and ideas. This was evident in the politeness which was shown to reporters during the interview and later in the evening at the reception held for Mme. Nhu and her daughter.

Canadian Lady And Mme. Nhu Chat In French

By Cora Kemp

A charming, Canadian-born lady whose only son is in Vietnam was one of the few people to converse personally with Madame Nhu during her recent visit to Raleigh.

Mrs. Marie L. Elliott of Fayetteville spoke in French as she and the Vietnamese woman engaged in a "woman to woman" chat at the small reception held in the Student Union around 7 p.m. Thursday.

"I wanted to know about her country first hand," Mrs. Elliott later said in French-accented English. "That is primarily what we talked about."

Mrs. Elliott, who speaks French, English, and Spanish fluently, is currently learning the Vietnamese language. She takes lessons two nights a week at the language center at Fort Bragg.

"I thought Madame Nhu had a wonderful opportunity to express herself here," Mrs. Elliott remarked. "I have read extensively about South Vietnam. Her talk was very informative."

Mrs. Elliott's major complaint was that she was unable to converse with Madame Nhu in her native language. "So much is lost in translation," she said.

Although Mrs. Elliott has lived in the United States for the past 30 years, this was her first visit in Raleigh. She spent Wednesday afternoon at the State Fair and toured Raleigh Thursday. "I wanted to see the (State) campus, but when I arrived, I didn't have time. I'd like to come back soon," she added.

Mrs. Elliott's son, Lt. Robert F. Elliott, also of Fayetteville, has been stationed at the South Vietnam Airborne Headquarters for the past two months. He will be there a full year.

Mrs. Elliott's late husband was a master sergeant with the Army Air Corps, now the Air Force. Her son, a Florida State graduate, is making a career in the Air Force.

Alei Speaks

Dear Alei: Do you think next year's dresses will cover the knees?

Dear Fashion-Minded: I think covered knees are fine but . . . there are other people who think that dresses should cover more than just knees.

Dear Alei: My English professor is trying to make me go to classes. I think this is unfair because last year I intercepted 14 passes, scored 31 touchdowns, caught 22 passes for a total of 1201 yards gained and made 21 out of 28 field goals. What should I do?

Dear Football: Forget English. Practice kicking.

Dear Alei: I am a plain girl without much sex appeal. All I want is a man who will love me. What should I do?

Dear Lonesome: Put a sack over your head, take off all your clothes and walk nude through the dorms. If this doesn't work, there's something more wrong with you than just being plain.

Dear Alei: I am a five-foot two-inch coed with measurements 36-24-34. Would you say I should be in the movies?

Dear Ambitious: I would say anything you wanted me to.

Dear Alei: Do you believe in sex before marriage?

Dear Inquiring: I believe in sex any time.

Dear Alei: I have gone steady with three different boys in the last three weeks. Would you call me fickle?

Dear Variety: I'd never call you.

Dear Alei: I am a physical cultural student and I must exercise a great deal so I don't have time for girls. Do you think I am missing anything?

Dear Physical: I think you're taking the wrong kind of exercise.

Three Trophies Will Be Awarded To Best Floats

By Bob Stampley

Preparations are now underway for the homecoming parade.

With the homecoming clash with the VPI Gobblers less than three weeks away, secret plans are being carefully laid by students in efforts to nab the golden trophies offered to parade winners, according to Glenn Chappell, parade chairman.

The Raleigh Merchants' Bureau has donated $135 for the three trophies which will be awarded in three divisions, fraternity, dormitory, and open, Chappell said.

Thirty and Three, an honorary fraternity that sponsors the parade each year, has extended invitations to Meredith, Peace and St. Mary's Colleges to enter floats.

The girls are being encouraged to show "less crepe paper and more skin," the members said.

Campus organizations seeking representation in the parade should contact Chappell for applications.

The parade will be held Saturday morning, November 9.

Sink or Swim?

There are four things to remember and many things to forget about the 1963 edition of the State-Carolina rivalry. Things to remember are: 1) the first half score, 2) the beautiful 76-yard (as the crow flies) touchdown run by Tony Kozarsky on an intercepted pass, 3) the excellent half-time performance by the N. C. State marching band, and 4) a good team profits by its mistakes.

Should the Wolfpack receive normal dividends from its "investment of mistakes," the Carolina game will not be a total loss. All the errors that plagued the Pack last year plus some new ones, fortunately avoided for the past four weeks, took their toll in every phase of the Pack's attempted football success.

The State coaches and players should be thankful to our liberal brothers, as the Tar Heels took all the mistakes and magnified them repeatedly in a most humiliating way, making them so evident that they could not go unnoticed and uncorrected.

The pressure created before Saturday's ill-fated clash only multiplies the tension surrounding the up-coming State-Duke contest. Will the highly-regarded State defense again be disregarded, or will the high-flying Devils learn how to lose from a wiser, more experienced Wolfpack squad?

Freshman Cagers Begin Practice

By Ralph Prestwood

With the football season just now reaching its peak and conference champions being decided, some people are looking ahead to the rapidly approaching basketball season. Some of these people are the coaching staff here at North Carolina State. If you happened to pass near the gym last Tuesday or Wednesday night, you probably heard the unmistakable "thump-thump" of a basketball on the hardwood floor.

According to Coach Lou Pucillo, about thirty boys showed up for freshman basketball tryouts. It was tough competition and after final tryouts Wednesday night only nine boys succeeded in making the team. These nine boys, along with six others who are playing on grant-in-aid athletic scholarships, will be the freshman team of 1963.

The six players on scholarship are: Paul Hudson—6'11", Reidsville; John Sellers—6'9", Lilesville; Jerry Simpson—6", Beulaville; Jerry Moore—6'7", Moleen, ILinois; Ed Biedenbach—6'1", Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; and Mervin Gutshall—6".

These players will be counted on heavily to lead the team this season. The other nine are sure to give some stiff competition. They are:

John Hassel—6", Beaufort; Lucian Griffian—6", Knap; Chip Palmer—6'5", Spencer; Steve McIntosh—6'6", Asheville; Steve Stevenson—6'2", Raleigh; Tom Haas—6'3", Hudson; Dennis Bartlett—6'2", Asheville; Ronnie Hoover—6'5", Charlotte; and Bryant Agnew—6", Bethesda, Maryland.

The freshman schedule follows:

Nov. 30, Edwards Military Institute (H), 6:15; Dec. 2, Naval Air Station (H), 6:15; Dec. 7, Wake Forest (H), 6:15; Dec. 13, North Carolina (H), 8:00; Dec. 14, Seymour Johnson (H), 6:15; Jan. 4, Duke (A), 6:00; Jan. 6, Wingate Junior College (H), 6:15; Jan. 15, North Carolina (A), 6:00; Jan. 18, Kings Junior College (H), 6:15; Jan. 25, Louisburg Junior College (H), 6:15; Jan. 30, Duke (A), 6:00; Feb. 5, Duke (H), 6:15; Feb. 8, V.P.I. (A), 8:00; Feb. 12, Edwards Military Institute (A), 8:00; Feb. 22, North Carolina (H), 6:15; Feb. 27, Wake Forest (A), 6:00.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Sigafos.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straightened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his reading speed, alas, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—picking up beebies with his toes—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana College of Lanolin and Restoration Drama and happily began a college career that grew happier year by year. Indeed, it became altogether ecstatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Anna Livia Plurabelle with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two sockets full of Lake Louise. Love gripped them in its big moist palm, and they were betrothed on St. Crispin's Day.

...but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill

Happily they made plans to be married immediately after commencement—plans, alas, that were never to come to fruition because Leonid, alas, learned that Anna Livia, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he not only had to repay his own loan after graduation but also Anna Livia's and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid at the Butte Otter Works simply did not pay enough, alas, to cover both loans, plus rent and food and clothing and television repairs.

Heavy hearted, Leonid and Anna Livia sat down and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Marlboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good and filter good, and when the clouds gather and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same easy pleasure, the same unstinting tobacco flavor, in all times and climes and conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Anna Livia, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor's degrees, they re-enrolled and took master's degrees. After that they took doctor's degrees—loads and loads of them—until today Leonid and Anna Livia, both aged 87, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, Woodpulp, and Dewey Decimals.

Their student loans, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to a combined total of nineteen million dollars—a sum which they probably would have found some difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.

You don't need a student loan—just a little loose change—to grab a pack of smoking pleasure: Marlboros, sold in all fifty states in familiar soft pack and Flip-Top box.
